The Bird Name Book Apr 06 2021 A marvelously illustrated A-to-Z compendium of bird names from around the globe The Bird Name Book is an alphabetical reference book on the origins and meanings of common group bird names, from "accentor" to "zeledonia." A cornucopia of engaging facts and anecdotes, this superbly researched compendium presents a wealth of incisive entries alongside stunning photos by the author and beautiful historic prints and watercolors. Myers provides brief biographies of prominent figures in ornithology—such as John Gould, John Latham, Alfred Newton, and Robert Ridgway—and goes on to describe the etymological history of every common group bird name found in standardized English. She interweaves the stories behind the names with quotes from publications dating back to the 1400s, illuminating the shared evolution of language and our relationships with birds, and rooting the names in the history of ornithological discovery. Whether you are a well-traveled birder or have ever wondered how the birds in your backyard got their names, The Bird Name Book is an ideal companion.

The American Natural History, Vol. 3 Sep 30 2020 Excerpt from The American Natural History, Vol. 3: A Foundation of Useful

Knowledge of the Higher Animals of North America; Birds (Concluded) Whenever, during the hour just before sunset, you see a good-sized bird with dark plumage, long, sharp-pointed wings, and a big white spot on the under surface of each wing, wheeling, soaring, dropping and circling through the air, you may know that it is a Nighthawk, catching insects. Its flight is graceful and free, and when on the aerial war-path it is a very industrious bird. Some people compare this bird on the wing with bats; but I see no resemblance save the bare fact of semi-nocturnal flight. This bird, and the other members of its Family, are among the very few North American birds that capture winged insects high in mid-air, and for this reason, even if there were no other, all the Goatsuckers should be most rigidly protected everywhere. The time for shooting the Nighthawk for sport has long gone by, never to return. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. Find more at

Birds, Vol. 3 Jan 27 2023 Excerpt from Birds, Vol. 3: A Monthly Serial, Illustrated by Color Photography, Designed to Promote Knowledge of Bird-Life With the January number of Birds, we enter upon a new year with the satisfaction of having pleased our readers, as well as rendered an actual service to the cause of education, ornithological literature, and art. Among the hundreds of testimonials from competent judges, (many of them scientists), which we have received, we will permit ourselves the use of one only, as exemplifying the excellence which we have sought to attain and the rightful claim which we may make for the future. The writer says: I find Birds an everlasting source of pleasure to the children, not less than to myself. I have one of the few almost absolutely fresh copies of Audubon's Birds, for which I have refused $3,000, besides later works, and I will say that the pictures of birds given in your magazine are infinitely more true to life, and more pleasing, every way, than any of those presented in either work. The other day I compared some of your pictures with the birds mounted by myself, notably a Wood-duck and a Wood-cock, and every marking coincided. The photographs might have been taken from my own specimens, so accurately were they delineated, attesting the truth of your work." Some of our subscribers, unaware of the prodigality with which nature has scattered birds throughout the world, have asked whether the supply of specimens may not soon be exhausted. Our answer is, that there are many thousands of rare and attractive birds, all of them interesting for study, from which, for years to come, we might select many of the loveliest forms and richest plumage. Of North American birds alone there are more than twelve hundred species. The success of Birds is due to its superior color illustrations and the unique treatment of the text. Popular and yet scientific, it is interesting to old and young alike. The classification and nomenclature followed are those adopted by the American Ornithological Union in 1895. Excerpt from Nature Neighbors, Vol. 3: Embracing Birds, Plants, Animals, Minerals, in Natural Colors by Color Photography; Bird The Painted Bunting, Nonpareil, or Mexican Canary occurs in the Southern States from Florida and Carolina westward to the eastern portions of Texas, usually wintering in the tropics. A few reach the Ohio Valley in southern Illinois and Indiana. In the South they are favorite cage birds, and readily become reconciled to small quarters. Like the indigo bunting, the male is a strikingly colored bird, but the plumage of the female is plain olive green. One variety spends the winter in Florida, but does not seek a more northerly climate until about May. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books. A bright sun shone upon the little valley, which, twenty-four hours before, had been deserted by the Osages, when a tall form glided cautiously to its entrance, half concealed by the bushes that fringed its edge. Glancing hastily around, War-Eagle, for he it was who was guiding his party in pursuit, returned to announce to them his belief that the enemy had decamped; nevertheless, the usual precautions were adopted against a surprise. The British Bird Book, Vol. 3 of 12 Jul 09 2021

Excerpt from The British Bird Book, Vol. 3 of 12: 200 Plates in Colour and Numerous Photographes; A Complete Work on the Birds, Nests, and Eggs of Great Britain If you will walk quietly along the banks of a rapidly flowing brook or shallow river, choosing one well strewn with moss-clad rocks, you may chance to see, perched in mid-stream on some jutting boulder, a small bird, not as large as a thrush, but much more rotund in its build, and having, at a distance, all the appearance of being clad in evening dress, white shirt front and black suit complete, but with the coat tails unconventionally truncated and projecting stiffly in a horizontal or upward direction. Watch this portly little body and you will see him curtsy this way and that way, with downward jerks of the tail, and then, if not alarmed, wade perhaps into the water up to his white front or even up to his neck, when he will sink and disappear beneath the surface, to emerge shortly afterwards none the worse, and showing no trace of immersion except a few shining beads of water that roll like quicksilver off his back. It was not long before he secured an introduction to the late Jenness Richardson. Then chief of the Department of Taxidermy. He soon struck up a strong friendship with Mr. Richardson. And many pleasant excursions were made together in search of material for local groups. When in 1889 an opening occurred in the department, young Rowley was engaged as an assistant. Under Mr. Richardson's admirable instruction he shot ahead rapidly and soon learned to success fully mount. Not only the smaller birds and mammals. But became initiated into the mysteries of the preparation of manikins for mounting large mammals. And the construction of groups. Mrs. E. S. Mogridge was at that time engaged in modelling artificial foliage for the bird groups then in preparation: from her he learned this work so important in making groups. Upon the death of Mr Richardson. In 1803. He became chief of the department. Under his direction the work has gone ahead rapidly and well.
